A BILL TO BE ENTITLED
AN ACT TO REQUIRE PROXY ADVISORY SERVICES TO MAKE CERTAIN DISCLOSURES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

SECTION 1. Legislative Findings. – The General Assembly finds the following:

- (1) When shareholders hire professionals to manage investments, they reasonably expect those professionals to perform services in the financial interest of the shareholders and to make recommendations that will enhance investment value based on financial analyses.
- (2) There is a particular need to require disclosures from proxy advisors because their advice is provided for hundreds of thousands of shareholder votes each year. Few investors have the resources to independently research every shareholder vote. Institutional investors often use proxy advisors for guidance on how to exercise their shareholder voting rights in a manner consistent with their fiduciary duties.
- (3) Fiduciaries under the Employment Retirement Income Security Act routinely hire proxy advisors to assist them in their legally required "fiduciary duty to manage plan assets . . . [including] the management of shareholder rights . . . such as the right to vote proxies." 29 C.F.R. § 2550.404a-1.
- (4) Directors of publicly-held companies also have fiduciary duties to their shareholders and make recommendations in line with those fiduciary duties.
- (5) Proxy advisors have recommended votes against company directors' guidance and in favor of shareholder proposals based on environmental, social, or governance (ESG) issues; diversity, equity, or inclusion (DEI) issues; and social credit and sustainability scores but have not disclosed to investors that the recommendations were made without conducting a financial analysis to determine how the recommended votes would affect shareholder value.
- (6) The chief operating officer of Glass Lewis, a major proxy advisor, stated under penalty of perjury that Glass Lewis does not conduct a "written financial analysis," as defined by this act, before recommending votes on shareholder proposals, and that other proxy advisors do not do so either. Yet proxy advisors have advertised that the purpose of their recommendations is maximizing, increasing, or protecting shareholder value.
- (7) These findings raise concern that proxy advisors are engaged in fraudulent or deceptive practices. They are not disclosing material information to their clients, who reasonably believe that they are choosing between

- 1 recommendations of company directors and a proxy advisor that are based on 2 dueling financial analyses.
- 3 (8) Investors purchasing proxy advising services should be informed when 4 recommendations against company management are or are not based on
 5 financial analyses that consider the recommended vote's effect on the financial
 6 value of the investment. Investors also should be able to access those analyses
 7 upon request, in order to assess whether the analyses are sufficient to uphold
 8 fiduciary standards.
- 9 (9) Requiring proxy advisors to provide clear, factual disclosures under these 10 circumstances helps investors evaluate whether a proxy advisor's
 11 recommendations uphold institutional investors' fiduciary duties of prudence
 12 and loyalty.
- 13 (10) Requiring proxy advisors to inform company directors of their 14 recommendations also promotes disclosures in line with fiduciary duties. For 15 example, company directors considering a shareholder proposal often have 16 additional information regarding the costs of the proposal and whether it is in 17 shareholders' financial interests. Notice of a proxy advisor's recommended
 18 vote on the proposal allows directors seeking to uphold their fiduciary duties
 19 to provide additional responsive information to their shareholders.
